Fashions and Household

By MRS. R. L. PASCHAL

FASHION NOTES.

Two long-established leaders, Callot and Paquin, are pitted against each other in a fashion war—Paquin is standing for more ample material; Callot for continued scant material.

The essence of the new Paquin movement is "fullness." The skirt is not so full but draperies are decidedly voluminous and often most complicated. Her coat suits are cut away sharply in front, skirts are laid in full godets, shirred on at the belt or arranged in side draperies much as are skirts proper. Paquin's styles are distinctly for mature women. Robustness is a feature noticeable. Callot's models are scander and briefer and the mannishness thinner. A slash permits walking. Scant, self-revealing drapery is shown. The skirts are quite narrow at the foot. New notes of color given by Callot are an indescribable, bright yellow-brown, almost a terra cotta. This is touched with black. Poppy pinks and reds appear as evening colors; glorious fresh greens and the famous Callot blue as well as the many new yellow shades are being presented.

Between the great amplitude of Paquin and the extreme scantiness of Callot, there is the happy medium—Cheruit. The Cheruit figure is absolutely natural, apparently uncorseted, flat, and rather broad below the hips. There is sufficient breadth to the skirts to permit of freedom of step and also a certain long-waisted effect produced by various sash or bodice arrangements. Vogue suggests: "Not styles for every woman but a particular style for each woman is an underlying principle of the work of the courtiers which, religiously followed, enables them to produce gowns that contribute not only to the beauty of the wearer but also to the éclat of the occasion."

Coats.

Callot's coats are either three-quarter length with broad panels hanging, like Watteau plaits, from the shoulders and caught in at the hem or else they are short and slightly flaring, usually made of brocade with cuffs and collar of fur and are worn with narrow skirts of black satin.

Most of Drecoll's coats are built either on military or directoire lines; the directoire shows a godet flare and an elaborate collar; the military coats are short and square with military collars and braid across the chest. With these coats, the plaited skirt is usually worn. Drecoll's long coats are extremely complicated and are sometimes mistaken for coat suits. His fur-bordered satin cape is rather short and looks something like the old-fashioned dolman.

Skirts.

Bichoff-David shows little drapery, most of his round length skirts hanging straight and slim from a high waist line and show a new line in the bell-like flare from the knee to the hem. This may be obtained either by a shaped flounce which is slightly circular or by flaring seams.

Variety is obtained by some costumers in allowing the plaited skirt to hang from a curved yoke which runs deep on the right side but disappears under the girdle on the left.

The Authorities.

Drecoll sends out a yoked and plaited skirt; Redfern, one split in the back; Bichoff-David one with a flaring flounce, and Douillet gives us full sleeves and arm draperies. Worth, in some of his creations, scarcely permits the mannishness to walk. In one respect, most of the courtiers agree—frocks shall be even more sketchy than heretofore above the girdle and very open below the knee, with filled in slits. The modish drapery is made shapely only by the skirt narrowing at the heels.

Sleeves.

The sleeve promises to be long this winter. Cheruit shows long, tight and shapely sleeves, the lower edge almost touching the knuckles and showing fur trimming.

Collars.

Collars are high, low and high and low in one. Long, snug-fitting wraps of sealskin show wide shawl collars of skunk or fox.

The high-collared frock sometimes shows a three-inch plaited frill of tulle hanging from the collar top.

The Robespierre collar in its various phases is a popular fad just now.

Furs of all kinds are used on every kind of material, even lace. This is a good time to use "odds and ends" in fur pieces which have been stored away.

For Cooking Macaroni or Spaghetti.

Put one pound of macaroni or spaghetti into one gallon of boiling water. Add one tablespoonful of salt. Let it boil about fifteen minutes then shut off the fire and add one quart of cold water to the contents of the vessel to allow the macaroni or spaghetti to separate. Let it stand about two minutes and strain through a colander. Drain all the water out and place upon a large dish or platter, over it sprinkle about half a cupful of grated Italian cheese. Pour over all your sauce and the dish is ready to serve.

For Macaroni or Spaghetti Sauce.

Take one medium-sized onion and four buttons of garlic. Chop both up fine with a little parsley. Put into a saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of lard. Smother the onions, garlic and parsley thoroughly and add a half cupful of water. Take about one and a half pounds of beef, smother it with the contents of the saucepan about five minutes. Then take two small cans of Italian Tomato Paste, dissolve into a quart of warm water and pour into the pan with the meat. Season well with salt and pepper, let it cook until the meat is done. In case the sauce is reduced too much by boiling, add a little water.

When the meat is cooked the sauce is ready to put over the macaroni or spaghetti—and you have a dish of the celebrated Macaroni à l'italienne.

Advertisements Cause Prejudices.

Tea and coffee are harmless to the vast majority of healthy people, says a medical expert, when used in moderation; that is, a cup of coffee for breakfast and a small after-dinner cup, with one or two cups of moderately strong tea at other times. There are a few individuals who have a strong susceptibility to both tea and coffee, and even a small quantity will act as a poison to such persons. Most of the prejudices and fear existing in people's minds with reference to tea and coffee have been created by shrewdly worded advertisements of fake substitutes.

SELECTING THE TURKEY.

Turkeys are found in the market throughout the year, but are best during the winter months. Cock turkeys are usually better eating than hen turkeys, unless the hen turkey is young, small and plump. A good turkey should be plump, have smooth, dark legs and cartilage at end of breast bone soft and pliable.

Chestnut Stuffing.

Three cups French chestnuts, 1-2 cup butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup cream, 1 cup cracker crumbs.

Shell and blanch chestnuts. Cook in boiling salted water until soft. Drain and wash, using a potato rinsers. Add one-half the butter, salt, pepper, and cream. Melt remaining butter, mix with cracker crumbs and then combine mixtures.

Two cups stale bread crumbs, 2-3 cup melted butter, 1-2 cup raisins, seeded and cut in pieces, 1-2 cup English walnuts, broken in pieces, salt and pepper, sage.

Mix ingredients in order given.

Oyster Stuffing.

Three cups stale bread crumbs, 1-2 cup melted butter, salt and pepper, few drops onion juice, 1 pint oysters.

Mix ingredients in the order given, add oysters, cleaned and drained from their liquor.

Cranberry Jelly.

Pick over and wash four cups cranberries. Put in a stewpan with one cup of boiling water and boil twenty minutes. Rub through a sieve, add two cups sugar, and cook five minutes. Turn into a mold or glasses.

Sterling Sauce.

One-half cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoon cream or milk. Cream the butter, add sugar gradually, and add milk and flavoring drop by drop to prevent separation.

MENU FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER.
